

This July 4th declare some independence from your kitchen and celebrate the holiday with the grill and friends. Take in the sites and vacate from your house!

HARLEM ARTS COUNCIL will be resting the month of JULY in order to gear up strong for August - December!

You can check out our fresh new and improved website and look at our upcoming classes!

Let us know if you have an idea for a class that we don't offer and we could possibly implement a teacher for it!!

Thanks and Enjoy the Summer.

IN THE MEANTIME...

Enjoy some national holidays in JULY:
July 2nd - National Hop-a-Park Day

Celebrate by visiting the different parks in your area. Support your local parks by keeping them clean, too. If you pack it in, pack it out or use available receptacles for trash and recyclables. Pack a lunch and bring a friend Post on social media using

#NationalHopAParkDay.

July 3rd - National Chocolate Wafer Day

Also called sugar wafers, these delicate snacks melt in your mouth. Made since the mid-1800s in the United States, makers called the cookies many names; wafer cookies, sugar wafers, sugar biscuits, fairy wafers.

July 4th - INDEPENDENCE DAY

July 5th - National Apple Turnover Day

Also called hand pies because their design makes them portable, apple turnovers have been around since the 17th century. Bakers fill a smaller, flaky pie crust with fruit or meat and fold it in half. Once the edges are sealed, the pie is baked or fried. For added sweetness, add a dusting of sugar or icing on top.

July 6th - National Fried Chicken Day

Yep - Even chickens get a day - Serve it with your favorite side dishes, too. Potato salad, cornbread, greens, or watermelon. And be sure to share! Invite some friends over, make some fried chicken, and share photos on social media using

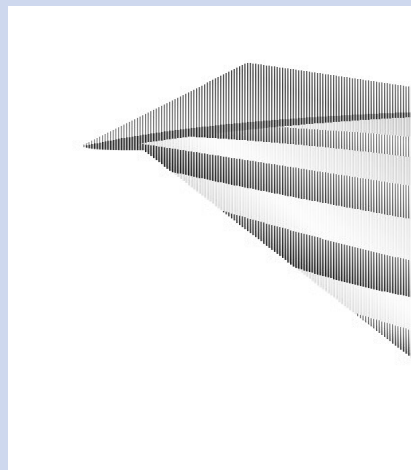

#NationalFriedChickenDay.

July 7th - National Strawberry Sundae Day

It's summer! Strawberries and ice cream just go together. What better way to celebrate than with a sundae? Set up a strawberry sundae bar and invite the neighbors to make their own. Post on social media using #StrawberrySundaeDay.

and many more - check out the website to see the endless possibilities!

Celebrate every day in July
